H A JOINING D S

ANNUAL REPORT
July 1, 2012 to June 30, 2013

WE JOINED HANDS WITH MANY PEOPLE TO DO OUR WORK THIS YEAR.

We joined with humanitarian aid workers worldwide to promote their personal resilience and trauma recovery.

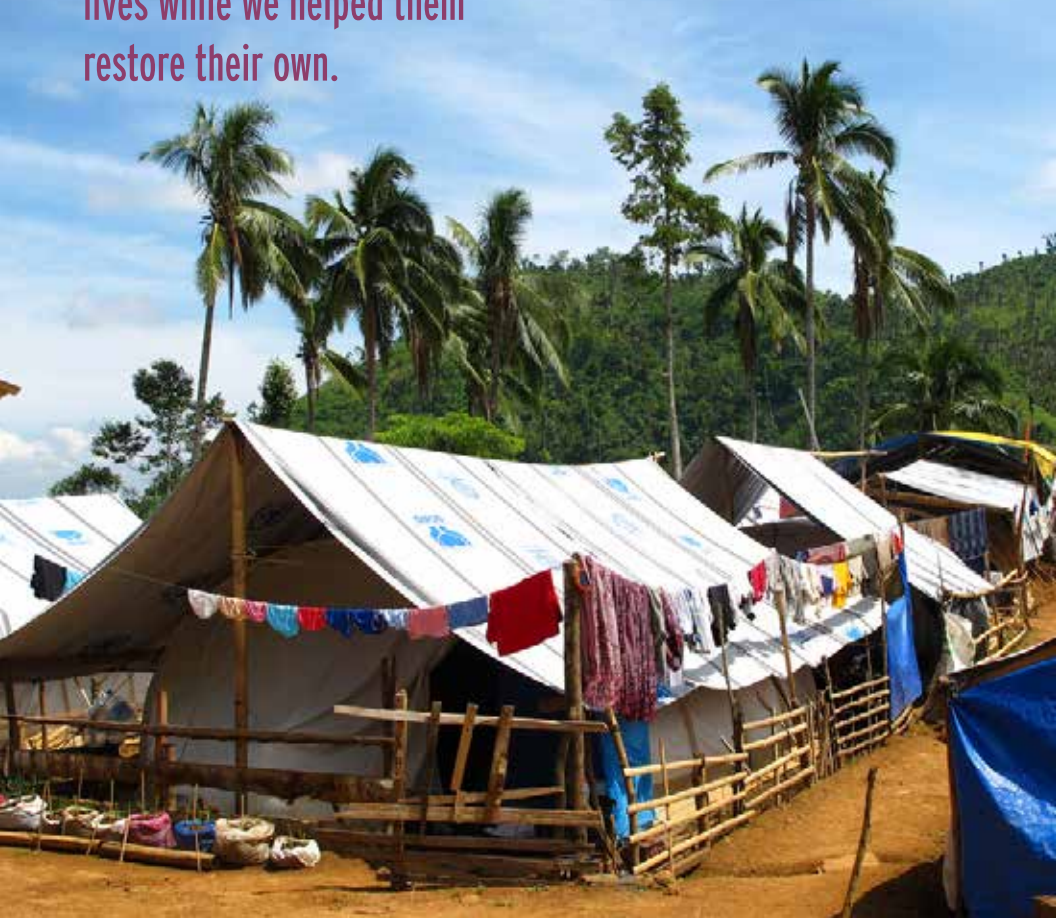

They helped millions of disaster victims rebuild their lives while we helped them restore their own.

From July 2012 to June 2013, we provided training, counseling, consulting, and assessment services to more than 2,000 humanitarian aid workers by traveling to the following cities:

- | | | |
|-------------------------|---------------------|--------------------------|
| Atlanta, GA | Cebu, Philippines | Panama City, FL |
| Baltimore, MD | Hammelburg, Germany | Phnom Penh, Cambodia |
| Bangkok, Thailand | Kep, Cambodia | Port au Prince, Haiti |
| Burlington, VT | London, UK | Swellendam, South Africa |
| Cambridge, MA | Nairobi, Kenya | Toronto, Canada |
| Cape Town, South Africa | Oxford, UK | |

We provided more than 1,000 hours of training, counseling, consulting, and assessment services by phone, SKYPE, and email to aid workers in over 125 countries. In some cases, we were their only source of support and care in the midst of an active war zone or high-risk location like Egypt, Syria, Haiti, and Sudan.

We joined with university research scientists to identify psychological and physical factors promoting brain resilience.

Neuroscience informs our training and treatment protocols so humanitarian aid workers have effective support.

The new Headington Institute Resilience Inventory has been validated on more than 2,500 subjects representing 63 countries

Over 300 humanitarian workers participated in our resilience study

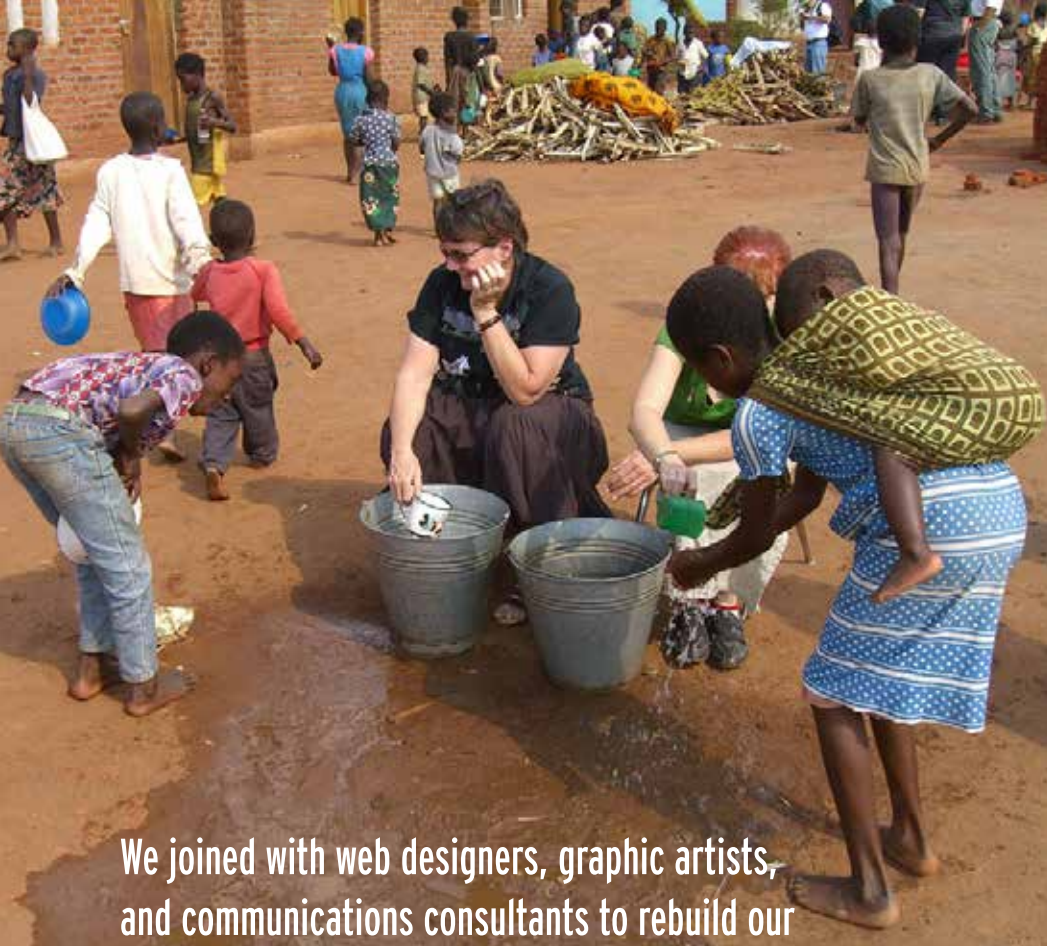

More than 400 aid workers completed online personality assessments

Two articles based on our research findings were submitted to professional refereed journals for publication

Our programmatic research was presented at an international conference of psychologists and neuroscientists

We taught at the Harvard Humanitarian Academy, training 100+ students from participating schools like Harvard, Tufts and MIT.

We joined with web designers, graphic artists, and communications consultants to rebuild our online resources.

Now others can better access and understand our message. During the last year we had ...
